

The period in which theory develops and affects organization and society

The period in which the theory no longer has any major impact on organizations and societies

FIGURE 2.4. The nine main areas of organizational theory from a temporal perspective.